World Mental Health Day

October 10 is commemorated as World Mental Health Day to raise awareness on mental health issues and mobilize efforts in support of mental health and well-being. Mental health is one’s emotional, psychological, and social well-being. It includes one’s thoughts, emotions, and behavior.

The focus of this year’s World Mental Health Day is “40 Seconds of Action”. The objective is to raise awareness about the surging numbers of suicides. Every year about 800,000 people die due to suicide, which makes it one suicide every 40 seconds (WHO). In India, around 2.2 lakh people die by suicide every year. However, for every 225,000 people, there is only one psychiatrist available.

Just as we have problems with physical health, we can also have problems with our mental health. Just as how physical health issues have causes and treatments, mental health issues also have causes and treatments available. There is an increasing number of mental health problems, especially depression, observed throughout the world. As H.H. the 14th Dalai Lama always emphasizes, as there is an increasing value on material development in today’s world, the feeling of loneliness has also increased, which in turn has increased the need for mental health care. Our Tibetan society is not immune to mental health problems. Unfortunately, there are few cases of suicides reported also in our community and this points to the need for mental health care and awareness programs in our community.

Suicide does not have one single cause. The interrelation of social, psychological, and cultural factors such as poverty, discrimination, loss of close person, trauma, substance abuse, etc. play a role in increasing vulnerability towards suicidal behaviors. Some of the signs and symptoms can be talking about wanting to die or kill oneself, talking about feeling trapped or having no purpose, talking about being a burden to others, sleeping too much or too little, giving away belongings, isolating oneself, and displaying mood swings and behaviors.

If you know someone who has indicated they are contemplating suicide, take them seriously. Encourage them to seek help from a mental health professional and don’t leave them alone.

Educating yourself and your loved ones about mental health care is important. General tips for taking care of your mental health include eating well, having an active lifestyle—exercising, sleeping well, having healthy habits. On the other hand, if you see some of these changes in someone else, approach them and ask them if they want to talk about it rather than talking behind their back. Listen to someone when they are sharing their feelings. Listening has been proven to be the strongest antidote to mental health problems, it validates others feelings and make them feel less lonely.

The Department of Health, Central Tibetan Administration take mental health as a priority. By taking the availability of our rich cultural resources into consideration, the Department of Health is planning on forming a mental health advisory committee comprising of members from fields of Buddhism, Sowa Rigpa, and Western psychology. The committee will play a vital role in guiding the department in implementation of the draft mental health programs developed during leadership workshop at Sangath, a renowned mental health research and training institution in India. We are also conducting the first survey on mental health in collaboration with Sangath. This will help in strengthening and developing plans to promote mental well-being.

If you know anyone facing mental health issues in your community, please reach out to the nearest health center or settlement office. Medical and counseling cost reimbursement of up to 50% is provided by the department.

As quoted by Sikyong Lobsang Sangay at the opening ceremony of 10th Body, Mind, and Life Conference, “Mental health is important for the old, the young, and the middle”, therefore, caring for mental health in our community is a responsibility of each and every individual.

This three-day workshop is being attended by 44 participants from 33 different settlements; they are hospital executives and Tibetan Medicare System (TMS) field dealing staff.

The workshop will focus on how to increase community awareness and membership enrollment of the TMS for the upcoming 2020-2021 year.

The special guests of the opening function included Sikyong Lobsang Sangay, Health Kalon Choekyong Wangchuk, Health Secretary Palden Dhondup, Additional Secretary JampaPhuntsok, and Joint Secretary Tsering Youdon.

The opening ceremony kicked off with Sangje Dhondup (TMS Information Technology) welcoming the special guests and all the participants of the TMS workshop followed by introduction of Nyima Gyaltse, the Head Officer of TMS.

Nyima Gyaltse introduced TMS as a system that needs to be able to function in the long-run and be able to cover all the Tibetans. He also mentioned how there is always a room for improvement, especially with membership, and that we must all work hard to keep TMS going.

The ceremony continued with health Kalon Choekyong Wangchuk stressing the importance of an individual’s role in the Tibetan community’s health as “lamton” and using one’s strengths to improve the healthcare system. He further remarked that the participants should set realistic goals and work towards those goals in order to strengthen TMS and most importantly, lessen the burden of the Tibetan people.

Next, Sikyong Lobsang Sangay congratulated the Health department and participants at the increased overall enrollment in TMS this year (27,496 total enrollment) and felt especially thankful to the medical officers and health staff of the Tibetan settlements who have been significant to the success.

He explained the progress of TMS since it was first discussed in the Tibetan parliament in 2007 and how it came about to its present status.

“Taking into consideration the importance of Tibetan public health, there was much deliberation and discussion for a comprehensive and equitable health care coverage for the public since 2007. Therefore, the Kashag formally launched the Tibetan Medicare System in 2012 to provide holistic healthcare coverage for the public based on a sustainable finance source,” he said.

As a part of the opening ceremony, Sikyong Lobsang Sangay and Health Kalon Choekyong Wangchuk awarded nine settlements with a certificate and reward for surpassing their TMS membership goal for the year. Kollegal, Mundgod, Dekyiling, Dharamshala, Ladakh, Tenzingang, Miao, Paonta, and Dalhousie and Bylakuppe Tibetan settlements were recognized for their efforts.

Health Secretary Palden Dhondup concluded the function with closing remarks and thank you address.

Settlement Officers and DoHe Executives joins for the workshop on the CCOCC program

Dharamshala: The Orientation Workshop on the Comprehensive Community Outreach & Coordinated Care (CCOCC) Program to the Settlement Officers and Department of Health (DoHe) Executive Secretaries was conducted from October 8-9th at the Central Tibetan Administration (CTA).

The workshop was in attendance by 45 settlement officers and seven executives from the DoHe primary health centers.
The opening function convened with Health Secretary, Palden Dhondup. In his key remarks, he stated that the Department of Health has two main approaches to health within settlements: prevention and treatment. Prevention in relation to awareness programs, gym facilities, and yoga sessions, and treatment in relation to the health facilities and health care workers. He restated that the Department of Health is working hard to strengthen these areas of health within the settlements.

Lastly, Health Secretary, Palden Dhondup stressed the fact that settlement officers, as leaders, play a vital role in promoting health and wellness in their respective communities. “Settlement officers do not just represent the Department of Home, they represent every department of the Central Tibetan Administration” stated the Health Secretary.

Following, Dr. Lobsang Tsering, DoHe consultant, gave a presentation on the current status of Tuberculosis (TB), hepatitis B, and Health Information System (HIS) in our Tibetan community. He stated that between 2012-2018, cases of TB has decreased, however, that does not mean that we should stop paying attention to the disease as it can still spread.

Based on a study done by the DoHe, CTA and John Hopkins University, in Bylakkuppe, there is an 8% prevalence rate, which is considered high according to the World Health Organization.

On the other hand he emphasized the main and best prevention method for hepatitis B are the three doses of the hepatitis vaccine for children.
